International Decade for Natural Disaster Reduction

IDNDR
1990 - 2000

Building a Culture of Prevention

UNITED NATIONS

Ability to reduce social and economic risks from natural and similar hazards require adoption of a "culture of prevention". It can only be accomplished through global commitment of nations for development of effective disaster reduction policies through partnerships for "Safer World".

In recognition of this fact, the decade 1990-2000 was declared as International Decade for National Disaster Reduction (IDNDR). The decade is coming to an end this year. On the last "World Disaster Reduction Day" which falls on 13th October, 1999, this special issue of SHELTER is HUDCO's contribution to the cause.
